Establishment of Leper Colony and Decrease in Import Duties Responsible for Losses-Figures and Facts from the Annual Report of Commander Sea-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The annual report of Commander Seaton Schroeder, Governor of the island of Guam, which is dated July 16, and which has just reached the Navy Department, indicates a rather serious condition in the island's finances, owing to the failure of Congress to appropriate the sum asked island's finances, owing to the failure of Congress to appropriate the sum asked for last year. The receipts last year were in round numbers $65,000, and the aspenditures, $57,000, leaving a balance of $3000, which, however, is a decrease of $13,000 in the cash balance for the preceding year. This loss is due largely to the unexpected expenses incident to the establishment of the leper colony and the decrease of over $10,000 in import duties. Compander Schroeder reports that it has been deemed prudent to stop all the work of public improvement until further appropriations shall be made.

The Governor suggests that if would be a great boom if the Department of Agriculture would establish an experimental station in the island. The Governor recommends that, if a Philippins silver dollar of fixed value is to be coined under the laws of the United States, it may be made legal tender also in Guam, in place of the present Mexican dollar. FLYING MACHINE. BELL MAY SOLVE PROBLEM.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]

IBY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]
WASHINGTON. Dec. 28.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who just returned to Washington from his summer home in Cape Breton Island, tonight ma't the following statement in connection with the reports that appeared in the public prints that he has invented a flying machine.

The newspapers have been prematured in announcing that I have been at work on a flying machine. I have not any flying machine at all and have not been trying to make one. I am, of course, interested in the problem and have come to the conclusion that a properly constructed flying machine should be capable of being flown as a kite if anchored to the ground, and that conversely a properly constructed kite should be capable of use as a flying capable of being flown as a kite if anchored to the ground, and that conversely a properly constructed kite should be capable of use as a flying machine if provided with suitable means of propulsion. My experiments have had as their effect the building of a kite of solid construction capable of carrying up in a moderate breeze a weight equivalent to that of a man and engine and so formed that it is believed suitable for use as the body of a flying machine, and that the supporting surfaces so arranged that when the kite is cut loose it will come down gently and steadily and land uninjured. I have successfully accomplished this, but don't care at the present time to make public the details of construction."

TACOMA, Dec. 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] James T. Royal has been around the United Staes three times within two months in the effort to catch up with Lafe Hanson, to whom he transferred his half-interest in twenty-four Klondike claims. Royal was one of the first stakers on Clear Creek. After securing twenty-four half-interests, he transferred them all to Hanson, who claimed that he had a customer for them in New York at $1000 per claim. Lafe came out before navigation closed, and Royal came into possession of an opened letter addressed to Hanson soon after. This letter awakened Royal's suspicions that Hanson might sell the claims without making a proper division of the proceeds. the proceeds.

Royal accordingly raised a sum of

He gave his testimony after the manner of a man who realizes that he is in a position that is a grave one, and each utterance was given with deliberation and care. It is evident that James McGuire, the engineer on the Stockton Fiyer, does not intend that the responsibility of the affair shall rest upon his shoulders if he can help 't. He was represented by legal counsel, F. V. Meyers appearing for him. Frank P. Kelley was present for the railroad. Only a few spectators were in the inquest-room this morning, contrary to all expectations. The majority of those present were witnesses who had been summoned by the Coroner.

Dolan stated that several delays, owing to accidents to the engine and to the air brakes happened before the Owl reached Byron, where a stopwas made owing to the disabled condition of the engine. From the time the Owl stopped at Byron until the Flyer ran into the train was several minutes.

KERR'S VERSION.

L. C. Kerr, engineer of the Owl on the might of the accident, next testified. He declared that his engine was in read condition when he left the pier, and remained so until Byron was almost reached, when it became "dead," the steam gauge showing less than stay pounds. Kerr was asked whether he did not have enough steam left to whistle a warning signal to the Stock-"I did." he replied.

"There are," answered Kerr. "Five blasts constitute that signal."
"Why didn't you give it?"
"The Stockton train was seven miles away when we stopped," replied Kerr. "and there would have been no sense in doing it then. When I got off the engine the brakeman was on his way with lanterns to signal the Flyer."

A peculiar circumstance was developed by a juror's question. This juror asked Kerr in a casual way if he had heard the two answering whistles from the Flyer that were supposed to be in recognition of the brakeman's signal to stop. "No," said Kerr, "I didn't hear those two whistles."

Other jurors asked Kerr how he failed to hear the whistling that Conductor Dolan had testified to hearing, and which seemed to them to be assurance that all was well, or would be. Kerr could not explain his failure to hear the Stockton engineer's response to the brakeman's warning lanterns. He did not hear the whistle, that was ail.

When the Owl began to slow down, Cole dropped from the train with his lantern, and began to run back to meet the Flyer.

"I swung my lantern as I ran," said Cole. "The Flyer was about five miles from me, I judged, when I started. When they answered my signal with the two blasts of the whistle I was from a quarter to half a mile from the Owl, and the Flyer was about the same distance from me.

"They were not," replied Cole. "If they had been I would have seen the sparks. The wheels of the engine as it passed me were revolving."

CONDUCTOR SCHU TESTIFIES. Schu, conductor of the Stockton Flyer, created a sensation by saying that on the previous trip of the Owl, his train had overtaken the Owl near Port Costa. That a collision was averted at that time by reason of the fact that the brakeman had gone back 500 yards and flagged his engineer. Schu then told of the collision, and continued: "When I got out of the car I saw Brakeman Cole coming toward me. He carried two lanterns, and was running. When I saw him he was four or five car-lengths away. The engineer could have seen the tail lights of the Owl, several miles away. I have seen them from Brentwood to Byron."

The inquiest will be resumed when before the four of the same and times was apparently so bewildered by the constant questioning as to default times was apparently so bewildered by the constant questioning as to details that he would be led into making replies totally at variance with the target was not a fault that the fault was not with the answers a few minutes preceding. That the lights were 2000 feet distant when he saw them and in the same breath he denied there was time enough to stop the Flyer. Asked to give an idea as to the time that elapsed from the appearance of the lights to the moment of the collision, Joyce replied that it seemed a day to him. He got down from his perch, shut off the oil burner, and when he saw a collision was unavoldable, he braced himself for the shock.

FLYER'S BRAKEMEN

Besides the two signal lights, there are signal lights in the rear of the train, which could be seen for a mile or two. In my judgment, the accident was caused by the engineer on the flyer expecting to find a freight crew at the lower end of the yard. Instead of this, he found the Owl 600 feet closer to him than he had anticipated."

In the person of James Murphy, who was arrested at Third street and Central avenue last evening, the officers believe they have the man who attempted to hold-up and rob Riggs, a carpenter, Wednesday night, at Second and Los Angeles streets. They have evidence which strongly points to aurphy as the highwayman.

Riggs was approached by a man who asked the time, thrust a revolver under his nose, and compelled him to go into a neighboring lumber yard. Among them was Murphy. Riggs will have a look at him today.

Giles, a government road contractor, and Lieutemant-Commander George W. Mentz, who with others are charged with smuggling wines and liquors from St. Thomas on board government vessels, was continued today. Collector Cruson testified that Giles wanted to pay duty on the cases of liquor in question and that he refused to accept the duty, as there is no law permitting the entry of merchandise on government vessels.

The collector said he boarded the lighthouse tender Laurel, where he saw three cases of liquors addressed to the captain of the Laurel and cases marked "Robert Giles." One case was opened and contained brandy. Collector Cruson demanded three times that these goods be delivered to him; upon failing to secure them he allowed thirty minutes for the cases to be delivered; they were then turned over. He said that Giles and Lieutemant-Commander Mentz wanted to return the cases to St. Thomas.

Officer Cosgrove of the Laurel was then recalled. He said the quarter-master of the tender had not reported the removal of any cases of liquor at Culebra. Quartermasters Schultz and Chipchase testified that nothing had been landed at Culebra, and the prosecution closed. The defense will submit its brief Monday.

MEND THE LAW. A it is to be hoped that Congress will not long delay taking action to amend the interstate commerce law in accordance with frequent sugges-tions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, so as to clothe that body with the power and authority requisite to give force and efficiency to its decisions.

atly made public, the Interstate mimerce Commission again calls at-tion to the need for a revision of merged in a few individuals whose common interests impel them to act in concert. While this will insure, as probably nothing else can in equal degree, the observance of published tariffs, and so measurably remove some of the evils which the act was designed to prevent, the resulting situntion involves consequences to the attention. A law which might have enswered the purpose when competi-tion was relied upon to secure reason-able rates is demonstrably inadequate when that competition is displaced by the most far-reaching and powerful ombinations. So great a change in onditions calls for corresponding change in the regulating statute." Further on in the report, the com-missioners show that it is now nearly more than thirteen years since it has been amended in any important par-ticular. It was understood, at the time the law was enacted, that it was more or less experimental, and the necessity was at that time fully recognized for such changes as experience in its operation might show to be de-Although there have been changes of the most radical nature in ratiroad management since the law was enacted, the law remains practically unchanged. Questions of railway regulation which had no existence when the law was framed have now become matters of vital concern. Under such circumstances, it is not surprising that the provisions of the law "have proved unequal, in some 18-commission to make orders founded on ascertained wrongdoing, and various other administrative features, were designed solely to give effect to its substantive provisions, and thereby secure to the public reasonable charges and impartial treatment. If the actual operation of this law and the efforts of the commission to make it effective had disclosed only minor and incidental defects, if its leading purposes had been fairly attributed and its expected usefulness realized, the commission might be excused from repeating its recommendations for amendment. This is not saying that the law is of little value, or has failed to bring about important reforms. On the contrary, it has furnished a considerable restraint upon the carriers subject to its provisions and promoted in a substantial degree the ends which it was designed to secure. Nevertheless, its inadequacy as a remedial measure was long ago discovered and further trial has illustrated the various respects in which it is insufficient. While its purposes are clearly beneficent, and while the principles which it embodies are more and more seen to be correct and salutary, the means devised for giving practical effect to its mandates are concededly imperfect. That this imperfection is means devised for giving practical effect to its mandates are concededly imperfect. That this imperfection is curable is equally conceded. The fullest power of correction is vested in the Congress and the exercise of that power is demanded by the highest considerations of public welfare."

The recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission that that body be clothed with sufficient power to give its decisions force and ef fectiveness seem entirely reasonable. While Congress is considering the trust problem, and is casting about for ways and means for its solution it would be well to give this phase of the subject due and careful consider-ation. The transportation trust must be regulated, as well as trusts and combinations in other lines of in-

THE VENEZUELAN SITUATION

Present indications are that the Venezuelan "unpleasantness," and the various questions connected with the strained situation arising therefrom sixteen years since the enactment of will eventually be referred to The the interstate commerce law, and Hague international tribunal for arbitration. This is well. The Hague court is the proper tribunal for the final determination of the controversy. It was established for the express purpose of settling disputes of this kind. If the theory be sound which led to sent and cooperation of the principal nations of the world, that theory would be violated and repudiated i the controversy were settled in any other way than through The Hague international court.

If it be true, as indicated in Washington dispatches, that the President has definitely decided not to act as arbitrator of this dispute, it is clear that he has made a wise choice. As The Times has pointed out, the President could not well take upon himself the delicate and difficult task of deciding as between the conflicting interests involved in this unfortunate affair. The peculiar situation of the it an almost imperative duty on the part of our government to keep aloof from the controversy, so far as possiour independent position, we should our independent position, we should as to publishing and filing tariffs and making annual reports, its methods for presenting complaints and conducting their investigation, its criminal reaction, the authority of the

It has been intimated that in case the questions in issue are referred to The Hague court, the blockade of Venezuelan ports will be continued un til a decision shall have been rendered This will not be necessary, and it should not be permitted. Several months would necessarily elapse be-fore a final verdict could be reached. In the meantime, if an attempt were made to maintain the blockade, new complications would be almost certain to arise, and these might become even existing. It is even possible (not to say probable) that actual war might be precipitated, in which the United States might become involved, while the case was pending in The Hague court, thus defeating in a most ig-nominious manner the very plan and purpose of the tribunal of arbitration. The blockade should be raised immediately upon the agreement of the parties in controversy to submit the ase to arbitraion. So far as possible he status quo should be restored, and all belligerent demonstrations should be abandoned, pending the rendering the verdict. This course would minimize the loss to commerce, allay animosities, and help immeasurably in the bringing about of a peaceful in the most favorable light, is fraught with danger of serious complications. It cannot too soon be ended. A rash act, on the part of the blockaders, or of the blockaded, might at any time precipitate trouble of a serious nature. Reference of the entire controversy to The Hague, with as little delay as posrecipitate trouble of a serious nature. Reference of the entire controversy to The Hague, with as little delay as possible, seems to be the only rational solution of the difficulty.

TOPEKA (Kan.) Dec. 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Politicians predict that the fight for Senator William A. Harris's seat will be one of the most interesting Senatorial struggles the Sunflower State has ever known. W. J. Bailey, the new Governor and former member of Congress, will be inaugurated next week, and balloting for Senator will begin a week later. There are five candidates, four of whom are members of the Kansas delegation in Congress. Representative Curtis, Long. Bowersock and Calderhead. Gov. Stanley is the other candidate. The leading candidates are Curtis, Long and Stanley. The hopes of Bowersock and Calderhead. didates are Curtis, Long and Stanley.

The hopes of Bowersock and Calderhead rest entirely upon the belief that the bitterness of the contest will demand selection of a "dark horse." Representative Curtis and Representative Long are both now in Topeka, have opened headquarters, and are personally directing their forces. It will take sixty-five members of the Legislature to elect, and as the contest now stands, none of the candidates will have within ten votes of a majority on the first ballot.

Curtis's friends predict that he will have nearly sixty votes to start with, and that the rest will be made up by desertions from Long and additions from the scattering few instructed for Bowersock and Calderhead. The friends of Long refuse to give out any estimates, but content themselves As An Investr

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Dec. 25.—
Miss Annie J. Belk, aged 40, a seamstress of Cripple Creek, and Robert M.
Pendleton, aged 65, a well-to-do citizen of Seattle. Wash, were married here last night by Justice Harrington after a personal acquaintance of Jess than one hour. During the Spanish American War Miss Belk made a quilt and sent it to the War Department, whence it found its way to the Philippines, where it was given to one of the regulars. The regular recently returned and at Seattle pawned the quilt to a second-hand dealer, from whom it was purchased by Pendleton. Miss Belk's name was on the quilt. Pendleton wrote to her. Correspondence followed which resulted in the wedding lart night.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

A fight was narrowly averted at the session of the Board of Public Works yesterday afternoon when Charles Conroy, a young man, referred to Wall street citizens as "low down people."
The protest against the opening of Wall and Myrtle streets was denied.

Aerimonious discussion occurred before the board yesterday over the application of the Los Angeles Brewing Company for a spur track on Moulton street.

"Buil" White came to trial yesterday on charge of robbing and brutally beating Mrs. Kate A. Dripps.

Judge Allen succeeded in effecting a compromise in the suit brought by Mrs. Nancy J. Fidell against Hellen Appleby, who had been deeded the old woman's property on condition that she should take care of her for the rest of her life, Charles A. Bacon was arraigned in the mile the suit brought was propered to the rest of her life, Charles A. Bacon was arraigned in the work of the arm that accompanied it made conroy angry in a moment.

The he uttered the heated speech that precipitated a rough-and-tumble scuffle.

It all happened so quickly that the members of the board were taken completely by surprise.

Bowen was completely at a loss to know why a surging mass of feminingty suddenly rushed upon him exclaiming. "Let me at him! Hit him! Kill him! Wretch! Monster!"

Before this exciting incident there was plenty of spicy debate. Dr. Sykes, who wore a cutaway coat and carried a cane and talked to the board with a toothpick in his mouth, was the orator of the day. Dr. Sykes used to the control of the loss of the loss standers, who testified that no harm had come to the boy, who had fied incontinently from indignant feminine pursuers.

But Mrs. Keatley was not pacified. "Just wait until I tell my husband about this. He'll attend to his case. We'll see whether we can be called low-down people," she said.

Finally Chairman Bowen's gavel restored some sort of order and the hearing was continued.

This outburst was the sequel to the life story of two orphans. Charles C. and Marguerite Conroy fell heir to ten lots on Fifteenth street at the death of their father, a banker, in Denver a few years ago. Their mother had previously died. They went to live with their aunt. The property on Fifteenth street was their sole holding. They had no income and the boy was too young to earn a living. It was nip and tuck with them to pay the taxes and such assessments as came due on the property. Recently young Conroy secured a position where he could make a little money. Not long ago proceedings were begun to sewer and otherwise improve Fifteenth street. The prospect of another assessment was grievous, but they planned to meet it. Then the people on Wall and Myrtle streets, each of which are in a cul-de-sac with no opening at the southern end, petitioned that proceedings be begun to open both streets. Some of the Conroy property was included in the assessment districts. This prospective assessment was the last straw.

The young orphans engaged Attorney Bradner W. Lee to represent them and determined to fight the assessment. They argued that Fifteenth-street property had been assessed to open that street and should not also be assessed to open Wall and Myrtle streets. They averred that such opening would be a damage and not a benefit to their property. Just the depth of one lot separates Wall and Myrtle streets from Fifteenth street, and they alleged in their protest that the property owners on the streets should be made to pay the costs of the improvement.

Yesterday was the third time that the proposed opening has been before

He replied with some heat to Mr. O'Day, a real estate man, who opposed the improvement, as planned. "What is this board here for?" he thundered. "I want to know what you gentlemen are here for? To protect the interests of Los Angeles; to protect the people, or to protect a few real-estate men. "Gentlemen, that street has long been made a dumping-ground for this city. Water Overseer's Report. Water Overseer George D. Pessell yesterday filed his annual report with the City Clerk. It shows receipts for the City Clerk. It shows receipts for the year ending November 30, of $12,-176.25, ahd disbursements of $11,850.22, a balance of $25.93. During the year the water sold netted the city $3484.00 less than in 1901, because nearly all water in the river was used in the domestic system and there was not enough left to supply the needs of irrigators. The most important improvement of the year was the piping of Zanja No. 2, on Alameda street, between Fourth and Seventh streets and between Twentieth and Thirty-eight streets, with a 22-inch pipe at an appromixate cost of $10,000. The water overseer recommends that this pipe be continued the coming year between Seventh and Fourteenth streets and from Thirty-eight street to a point 600 feet below Rubio street.

Commissioner Vickrey presided at the ression of the Fire Commission yesterday. The pay roll for December amounting to $10,267.30 was approved. F. W. Heineman addressed a communication to the board disclaiming any intention of storing hay, building oil tanks, or starting a livery stable at Ninth and Stanford streets. A protest against such building was filed. Fire losses for the week amounted to $13,-200. Yesterday afternoon the Board of Library Directors voted to accept the donation of 1000 books and certain furniture and fixtures from the Garvanza Library Association providing the association will leave the future maintenance of the library branch to the discretion of the board. A petition from James L. Morton of the County Farm for discarded books was granted. Miss Mary L. Jones, the librarian, was granted a week's leave of absence beginning January 3, to attend the Library Institute at San Francisco.

"To enable you to detect any frauds and to prevent you from passing out $5 gold pieces for nickels the employés in the office wish to present you with these," and John Kenealy, bond clerk, held up before City Treasurer Workman's astonished eyes a pair of goldrimmed glasses. "Uncle Billy" returned thanks in his inlimitable style, thanked his deputies, and produced a box of fine cigars for free distribution.

IS IT AMBERGRIS?

Big Chunk Discovered Floating in Water Near Catalina Island-Worth Twenty Dollars a Pound.

What is supposed to be a large chunk of ambergris was received in this city yesterday, having been sent from Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, by Capt. Curtins of one of the glass-bottom launches.

Curtins found the specimen, which weighs eighty-one pounds, floating in the ocean a short distance from the island, and sent it here for examination.

If You Want to go East C. Haydock.

island, and sent it here for examination.

It is bright gray in color, streaked with black and yellow, and is in other respects like the real article. Ambergris, which is known as the morbid secretion formed in the intestines of the spermaceti whale, is valuable as a material in the manufacture of perfumery and commands a high figure, being worth something like $29 a pound in its crude shape. The find may be an important one.

Dear Sir: As we understand that you have issued a statement in your paper of Saturday, Dec. 6, that no piano manufacturer would be willing to put himself on record that he sould not give any department store in the United States he representation of his pianos, and that you would be leased to publish a denial of this claim on the part of any sanufacturer on the front page of the "Courier" for one was free of charge, we cannot but take advantage of such a merous offer, and we berewith emphatically state over our manufacturer that no inducement could be made to us by a department store, no matter how exalted its position may be to place our planes on sale with it (which so many there have been compelled to do). While we do not for one coment wish to deny the position or influence of department stores, at the same time it is our firm opigion that an attrument such as ours, which is in a class all by itself, can be above to best advantage only in the musical strateghers it regular planoforts buildings.

Little Louise Kelly Killed by Miniature Engine.

Four-year-old Daughter Scorched to a Crisp by Flames from Christmas Gift.

Little Louise Kelly, 4 years old, was shaking her golden curls in glee yesterday morning over her Christmas toys; last night the house of her father, Clarenze Kelly, No. 219 North Hill street, was dark with the gloom of her death. The body that had been so rosy and plump was burned toa hard crisp; the golden curls were gone, and the beautiful features were brown and distorted.

It held about two tablespoonfuls of fluid.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning Clyde and Louise were playing on the front porch. Clyde was deep in the wonders of his locomotive and Louise was bubbling over a little trunk. Maggie Miller, a servant girl, 15 years old, was in the house sweeping and dusting. Mr. Kelly was at his grocery store, Nos, 31s and 320 Temple street, and his wife was with him.

Clyde was on the bottom step experimenting with his engine, and Louise was on the top step with her trunk. It was such a little treasure that she put her shubby arms around it and hugged it to her breast. It fell from her graspand rolled down the steps past the engine. She ran down after it and leaned over the engine to pick it up.

The little woolen kimon she was wearing brushed against the flame in the lamp, and as she straightened up the fire caught on her flannel shirt.

SHE RAN ALL AFLAME.

She gave a scream of anguish so

STATE LAWS

Gov. Gage may stick to Last for reappointment as brigadier-general in the National Guard of California, but there seems to be little probability that Last will stick to the position. In fact, it is declared that the law bars him from serving, and in addition to that there is little likelihood that a Republican Senate will confirm the latest misfit appointment of the retiring and politically dead Governor. Last is a Democrat, and was appointed to his present position in 1897, by Gov. Budd.

The law on the subject is plain, requiring that major-generals and brigadier-generals of the National Guard of California, or in the United States military service, or both; two years of which service shall have been as a field officer.

It is pointed out that Gen. Last never served as a field officer, and that he therefore is ineligible.

Section 1918 of the Political Code of California was passed after the original appointment of Gen. Last, and its purport was to cover just such cases as his. Its language is as follows:

"The commander-in-chief, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, must appoint one major-general, and for each brigade of the National

Clyde had a pan of water, and he threw it over her. The fire sizzled and went out in spots, but there was little more fuel for it. Maggie wrapped the writhing body in the rug and carried the child into the house. The neighbors came crowding in, and assisted all they could, but the poor child, moaning spasmodically on the bed, was past help. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were notified immediately, and came rushing up the hill to the little home they had left with such light hearts an hour before. It took nearly half an hour to secure physicians. very subject an excellent appeal for popularity. For it is os, though the reason is far to seek, that novels dealing with the great sectional struggle are eagerly read by many people, entirely apart from their merits as fiction pure and simple. There have been written some good novels concerning the Clvil War, and there have been written many excruciatingly bad ones. Also, there have been indicted a few which are of such material and treatment that it is difficult to speak critically of them; and of this latter class is the book before us. "The Whirlwind," by Rupert Hughes. The book is not entirely a war novel, for its beginning and its ending seek other periods; but the greater part of it is told of the war period, though as the author approaches very near to the end of his story he tells us that all that has gone before is but prologue. This might frighten us, were it not that the unshakable evidence of the dimnishing number of pages falsifies the statement. As a matter of fact, however, we have very little doubt that Mr. Hughes set himself to write one kind of a story, and was seduced by the facilities of composition in certain lines to write another—or rather so to change his emphasis that his book assumed an aspect entirely different from that which at first it was meant to wear.

The novel purports to tell the life history of one John Mead, who, born in humble circumstances and handicapped by some disabilities of natureries triumphant over all odds and at last wins himself a place among the foremost of American politicians—the author euphemistically refers to them as "statesmen:" but we cannot follow him here. This is a kind of story

No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any ether, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. Cuticura Soap combines delicate emolient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower cdors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Judge

I do not wish people to judge my work merely upon what I say about it. I want them to note the evidences that I want them to note the evidences that prove my statements correct. The proof of a physician's ability is to be found in the results he obtains, and though I am not at liberty to supply individual names of patients as references, the marks of superior skill and service are so prominent and conspicuous as to render my doing so unnecessary. Estimate for yourself my volume of practice as compared with the practice of other Los Angeles physicians. Nobby Clothing for Boy

Now that the little chap has had his fill of Christmas and you have purchased him all the toys you thought necessary, look a little on the practical side and see if he does not need a suit, for boys always need new clothes if they are ruddy little chaps as they can wear them out much quicker than parents think necessary; and even at that the price of a suit is cheaper than a doctor's bill and no attendant worry. Now our boys' clothing is all made under best sanitary conditions and with as much attention to fit and detail as those for adults, and we know to a certainty that our prices are from 15 to 25 per cent lower than exclusive stones, and we further agree to give you a new suit for any which you do not think wears as it should, allowing for ordinary usage.
